Notice.

THE publication of this and a succeeding volume, being the fourth and fifth of the series of Special Laws, completes the execution of the powers given to the subscribers, under the resolve of 22d February 1822. They terminate with the acts of that session, it being the same period to which the General Laws were brought down, and the completion of a volume, in the order of publication now in use. The acts since passed, compose part of a new volume, and at present, are easily obtained and consulted. The same general plan has been pursued in the arrangement of these volumes, as in that of the General Laws, where it was applicable. All acts repealed, and those which have expired by any limitation, express or constructive, have been omitted, except some few, under which titles to real estate have been acquired. All acts merely local, relating to Maine, have also been omitted.

In preparing the index, it has been thought most advisable to insert in each volume, an index to the matter of that volume only, with the view of preserving a uniform method, should the series hereafter be continued. The references to the special laws are comparatively so few and easily traced, that it can hardly be thought necessary to repeat in each volume, the index to all the preceding volumes.

The acts contained in these volumes, have been carefully compared with those printed by order of the Legislature, as then examined and certified by the Secretary, without being again compared generally with the original rolls. But in all cases, where any ambiguity, defect or other error was apparent or suspected, reference was had to the original rolls; and in a few instances, errors have thus been discovered and corrected. Every facility has been afforded by the Secretary in these examinations.

The commissioners respectfully submit these volumes to the Legislature, with the assurance that in these and the General Laws, they have endeavoured faithfully and to the best of their ability, to execute the plan prescribed by the resolve, under which they have acted, and with an earnest hope, that they will be found to satisfy the reasonable expectations of the Legislature and the public.
